This supplies the vitamins which are so essential to the growth of a child.

At the age of a year children may be given cereals prepared from cereals with long cooking. Broths from chicken or mutton and a little baked or mashed potato. Vegetables, to be enjoyed and liked, must be served to the very young in some form suitable, then as they grow older they will need no urging to eat all kinds of wholesome vegetables.

From the ages of fourteen to sixteen both sexes need the food of adult life. A boy growing rapidly often needs and eats more than his father. Highly seasoned foods, stimulating foods and condiments should never be given growing children, as such foods act upon the system and may cripple the whole life.

When using butter, cream and milk in foods remember that they are themselves foods.

Something to Eat

If one has the patience to prepare and grate fresh coconut there are many ways that it may be enjoyed in planning the menu. It is wise to sugar it well over the top of the bowl and keep in a cold place—in the ice box is best. It will keep a week or two, providing the family does not like it too often.

When serving custard pie, sprinkle a thick covering of the fresh-sugared nut over each piece as it is served. For cup custards a tablespoonful on top when served adds both to its appearance and taste.

New Onions.—Take two small bunches of green onions, trim, but leave on most of the green stem. Cook in boiling salted water until tender, then serve in a rich white sauce over buttered toast, cover with buttered bread crumbs and serve.

Broiled Hamburger.—Season the chopped meat with salt, pepper, a pinch of clove and a tablespoonful of onion juice. Make into a large flat cake, not too thick. Lay on a well-greased broiler and broil quickly until both sides are seared, then cook with a reduced heat until well done.

Cream Pie.—To one cupful of milk add one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour—mixed with some of the cold milk before adding—the beaten yolks of two eggs and a pinch of salt. Cook until thick, flavor with orange or almond and set aside to cool. Bake a shell and fill with the mixture, cover with a thick layer of sugar, coconut, the freshly grated kind, and serve. If the coconut is not available, use the whites of the eggs and two tablespoonfuls of sugar beaten and placed on top; brown in a moderate oven.

Rochester Soup.—Blanch two-thirds of a cupful of almonds, chop and pound in a mortar, add gradually while pounding four tablespoonfuls of water, one-half teaspoonful of salt, then add three cupfuls of chicken stock, one sliced onion, three stalks of celery cut fine. Simmer one hour, rub through a sieve and bind with three tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour cooked together.

Carrots Carrots, being rich in iron and other mineral matters especially good for the blood, should be served often, as they are good for both the youth and the aged. Finely grated or put through the meat-grinder, mixed with a bit of celery and minced onion, served on lettuce with a good salad dressing, there are not many who could refuse such a salad. Nuts, pineapples and other combinations with carrots are well liked.

Browned Carrots.—Cut fresh new carrots into finger-sized pieces, wash well and put to cook with a little butter and no water; the moisture left from washing the vegetables will be sufficient. Cover tightly and let them steam in their own moisture. Stir occasionally when they begin to brown and season to taste. Served in this manner every bit of the flavor and mineral content will be left in the vegetable.

The addition of a few carrots to a lamb or mutton stew adds much to its flavor and palatability.

U. W. Cherry Duff.—To two tablespoonfuls of sugar add one-fourth cupful of butter, one-half cupful of sweet milk, one egg, one-half cupful of flour, and one and one-half teaspoonful of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt; add one cupful of canned cherries and bake in gem pans. Serve with: Cherry Sauce.—To one cupful of the cherry juice thickened with a teaspoonful of cornstarch add one-third of a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt and a tablespoonful of butter, adding just before serving with a few drops of almond flavoring. Mock Crab Toast.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add one-half pound of cheese and a tablespoonful of anchovy paste, one-half teaspoonful of mustard and the same of salt. Stir until the cheese is melted over a slow fire, then add the beaten yolks of two eggs, diluted with one-half cupful of cream. Continue stirring until the mixture becomes smooth and thick. Serve on buttered toast or toasted crackers. (Newspaper Union) (Copyright, 1927)
